Quest's Amazing Race

Intro:

Our Amazing Race focuses on team synergy, strategising and the execution of a solid plan. With smaller teams of 6 to 7, there is the potential for greater individual input from team members. This is a great activity for multi-national groups looking to foster greater team cohesion.

Duration:

2 – 4 Hours

Overview:

Teams are issued with their own Tuk Tuk taxi and driver. They must travel around the Laguna area answering questions, collecting items and completing a series of objectives and problem-solving activities. The groups will have to work together as a team using whatever resources are available to them whilst using their initiative and creativity to gain an advantage over the other teams and maximise the time they have.

Quest's Survivor Challenge

Intro:

This program aims to improve intra-company relations through the development of communication channels, resource management and camaraderie. Great for multi-cultural groups. Team members will be required to think on their feet and adjust to each situation that comes their way.

Duration:

4 Hours

Overview:

Based on the reality TV show, Quest's Survivor Challenge brings Tribes together to outwit, outplay and outlast each other in a variety of problem solving activities. Fire torches represent the points and Tribes must avoid having a torch extinguished in 'Tribal Council'.

Quest's Adventure Program

Intro:

Team members will be challenged with a variety of adventure-based activities that are designed to take an individual out of their "comfort zone" and expose them to new experiences. The aim is to develop team support structures, mutual respect and leadership potential.

Duration:

4 Hours

Overview:

These activities are, in many ways, more mental than physical. Team members will have to overpower their fears and challenge themselves to complete their own 'personal missions' with the support of fellow team members. Quest has a large range of problem-solving initiatives that develop all elements of team work.
